This is me after a day trudging through the snows of the book publishing world:

Bye!

Dear Readers:

First of all, I would like to thank everyone for their generous support of me as a writer and as an “accidental businesswoman.” Little did I know that, becoming a published author entailed starting my own business, but it is true. I will never regret a day of my newfound business venture. While my fantasy of traveling the country attending book signings and university speaking engagements has not materialized, I still love what I do. In the words of a fellow writer, “Do what you love and call it work.” This is what I do and, for your support, I would like to say again, “thank you.”

Sincerely, Corrine Ardoin

Words of Wisdom

Here is something I wrote which I find encouraging on my path as a writer:

The heart, its reasons and its needs are unknowable.

To live from the heart, then, is to dwell in the mystery, to trust this unknowable force in our lives. To follow one's heart's desire is to follow the unfolding of the mystery.

It is to lead one's life in sacred relationship with their soul, guided by its secrets revealed at just the right moment.

They are the stepping stones of our life's path, placed when we are ready to follow it once again.
